

Dear EPSA Friends,

The European Institute of Public Administration (EIPA) and the Provincial Council of Barcelona, the EPSA 2015 winner of the cross-cutting award, invite you to their International EPSA Knowledge-Transfer Conference on *Urban Development for Healthier Cities – A Cross-cutting Approach to Innovative Local Governance, which will take place in Barcelona (ES) on 13-14 June 2016. This conference aims to bring together - from all over Europe - leading public sector and academic representatives in the field of integrated urban development and cross-disciplinary approaches for healthy local environments and holistic urban policies.

Six EPSA champions and other internationally renowned figures in the field will share their experiences on how they created innovative local governance approaches taking into account the wellbeing and health of their citizens, how they developed cross-sectoral and cross-departmental solutions and created synergies and designed healthy cities by facilitating active mobility and green policies. Their stories will be complemented by presentations from other acknowledged experts in the area. These first-hand experiences aim to inspire the audience to take a fresh look at local governance, build bridges and break down departmental silos to create innovative approaches to integrated urban development for healthy living. In addition, they constitute valuable lessons learnt in the domain of local public leadership for other public actors.

Attendance to the conference is free of charge, so seize this opportunity and register soon!
